My Phone Manager

In many cases, users can be put off setting useful functions due to the need to 'program' these functions on the handset itself. This means that most users do not get the full benefit of their featurephone.

Toshiba's My Phone Manager allows individual users to quickly and easily configure their own featurephone for the functions that matter to them. Features including basic station options, call forwarding and personal speed dials can be configured through a simple web interface.

Access can also be granted managers or supervisors to, for example, forward calls to voicemail if an employee is off sick.

By ensuring that key functions can be easily set and amended, My Phone Manager allows individuals get the very best out of their featurephone, and helps to increase productivity and efficiency.

- Ensures that key functions such as call forwarding and speed dials are used, increasing efficiency.
- Allows users to be more flexible in how they use their featurephone.
- Reduces the need to call out IT personnel basic administration tasks.
